KDP AI Disclosure & Account Safety Checklist

Amazon allows AI-assisted books. It does not allow careless ones. Follow these checks for every title an AI agent produces for you.

Disclosure — Every Title, No Exceptions

- CHECK: When KDP asks about AI-generated content during upload, answer truthfully: text, images, or both, as it applies to that title.
- CHECK: AI-translated content counts too. If the agent translated any part, disclose it in the same step.
- CHECK: Keep a simple log per book: tool used, date, what you edited by hand. Two minutes per book, priceless in an appeal.

Quality Gates Before Publish

- CHECK: Read the entire manuscript once as a buyer, not as the producer. If you would refund it, readers will too.
- CHECK: Verify every factual claim, name, date, and instruction. AI drafts state false things in a confident voice.
- CHECK: Run a plagiarism/similarity scan. AI can echo existing books, and near-duplicates trigger account reviews.
- CHECK: Listen to the full audiobook narration once. Mispronunciations and robotic pacing are review killers.

Account-Level Rules

- CHECK: Never publish unedited output in bulk. A flood of low-quality titles is the pattern that gets accounts terminated.
- CHECK: Space your releases. A natural pace with real edits looks like a publisher, not a content farm.
- CHECK: Never buy reviews, and never ask friends to review. One violation here can end the account permanently.
- CHECK: Use your own covers or properly licensed assets. Trademarked characters and celebrity likenesses are automatic trouble.

Your KDP account is the asset. Every rule in this document exists to protect it while the software does the heavy lifting.

Free bonus for AzonAgent buyers via Pickzox. (c) 2026 Pickzox. Not legal advice.