Faceless Story Channel Launch Checklist

A Pickzox bonus for CineMill Creator buyers. Work through it in order: buy right, set up once, publish ten videos, then grow.

Before you buy

- Check your computer: Windows 10 or 11 (64-bit), or macOS 14 or newer, with Google Chrome installed.
- Confirm you have a free Google account and about 5 GB of free space.
- Pick one genre to start with. CineMill Creator includes 5 trending genres; depth beats variety at launch.
- Decide your format mix: Shorts under 60 seconds for fast reach, plus long videos of 5 to 20 minutes for watch time.

Set up your channel

- Choose a channel name that says what your stories are about, not your own name.
- Write a one-paragraph channel description: who the stories are for and what viewers get each week.
- Prepare your logo. CineMill adds it as a watermark and builds your intro and outro from it.
- Create a simple upload routine you can keep: for example, 3 Shorts a week and 1 long video a week.

Plan your first 10 videos

- Write 10 one-sentence ideas before you open the app. One sentence is all CineMill needs.
- Make the first 3 videos in the same genre so new viewers know what to expect.
- Vary the hook: a question, a surprising fact, a mystery, a mistake, or a bold promise.
- Keep a running idea list. Add every idea the moment it comes to you.

Publish each video well

- Use the title, description, tags, and thumbnail CineMill prepares for every video.
- Say the hook in the first 10 seconds. Viewers decide that fast.
- Add the pinned comment CineMill suggests, and reply to early comments yourself.
- Preview 10 seconds first. If a scene looks wrong, use Try again before you render the full video.

Spend your credits wisely

- Your purchase includes 100,000 AI credits, valid for 1 year. One credit equals one character the AI reads or writes.
- Pictures, voices, Try again, and a second video from the same script use no credits.

- Draft your script idea tightly. Shorter scripts cost fewer credits and hold attention better.
- Check the cost shown in the app before you press Create, and buy extra credits only when you need them.

Grow week by week

- Publish on a fixed schedule for at least 8 weeks before you judge the channel.
- Turn your best video into a series. Series bring viewers back.
- Watch retention, not just views. Find the minute viewers leave and fix that part next time.
- Never promise income or results you have not earned. The sales page itself says results are not typical.
